A MAN arrested on suspicion of grooming after he was filmed by a self-styled paedophile hunter hanged himself at his home in Harlow.

The body of Terry Hurford, 44, was discovered by a friend three days after he was arrested by police and released on bail.

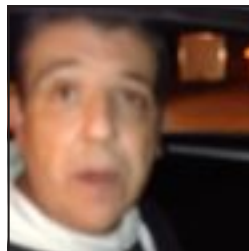

An inquest into Mr Hurford's death, held in Chelmsford on Tuesday, was told he killed himself by asphyxiation. He had left several notes to his estranged wife, children and friends.

In them he said his life had "fallen apart", was "impossible

Mr Hurford was lured to Thorney Bay Caravan Park in Canvey

Island by Christopher Wood, who calls himself 'Cattfish the Hunter'. Mr Wood said Mr Hurford thought he was meeting a 14-year-old girl to whom he'd been talking on social media.

Two videos of their encounter, in which Mr Wood questions Mr Hurford on his intentions and relays their online conversations, were uploaded to the internet on May 28.

A spokeswoman for Essex Police, which has have referred the case to the Independent Police Complaints Commission, said: "A 44-year-old man was arrested on suspicion of

Party time as town celebrates Queen's 90th birthday

RESIDENTS are being invited to sign a book of congratulations as part of Harlow's celebrations to mark the Queen's 90th birthday.

Council chairwoman Edna Stevens and vice-chairwoman Sue Livings were the first to pen messages in the book, which has been placed in the reception area at the Civic Centre.

Cllr Stevens wrote: "Congratulations on your 90th. I look forward to signing another book like this in 10 years time."

The book will be available to anyone wanting to add their own message in the Civic Centre today (Thursday) and tomorrow from 9am-4.45pm. It will then be taken to the Harvey Centre where it can be signed over the weekend from 9am-6pm.

After that the book will be

On Saturday the Harvey Centre will be lit in the national colours of the Union Flag and decorated with bunting when it hosts a "right royal knees-up" in the form of a traditional afternoon tea for young and old, starting at 12.30pm.

The tea is being supplied by Tesco, BB's Coffee and Muffins, and Couzens Bakery. Cllr Stevens will present special gifts to residents who are celebrating their 90th birthdays this year and there will also be ballroom dancing from Lesley Whitaker School of Dance and entertainment from the Harlow Community Choir. Shoppers will be given free flags and can pose for a selfie with cardboard cutouts of Her Majesty. The Phoenix Resource Centre will be providing decorations and running free activities for children including tiara and crown making workshops, glitter tattoos and a 'pin the nose on the corgi' competition. Paradise Wildlife Park will be taking along ride-on horse toys for children to play on. Cards Direct and Everything 2 Party are supplying the balloons while Reksio will provide a four-tier cake featuring an image of the Queen on the icing.

Harvey Centre manager Bryan Young said: "We are really excited to be working in partnership with The Phoenix Resource Centre to host our very own royal tea party."

"It's a great way for the community to come together to celebrate the achievement of our Monarch and members of their own families who have achieved this milestone birthday."

BHS expected to close in summer

Dozens of jobs will be lost at town centre store

William Mata

william.mata@hertsexnews.co.uk

HARLOW town centre has been dealt a further blow with the news that the department store chain BHS is to be wound down.

The company's store in the Harvey Centre is set to close in the summer with the loss of dozens of jobs.

The decision by administrators to wind down the business after attempts to find a buyer were unsuccessful means the town has lost two of its biggest names in the space of just 18 months.

Marks and Spencer closed its store in January of last year after company bosses announced that it was no longer viable.

Billionaire businessman Sir Phillip Green owned the BHS chain for 15 years before selling it to Retail Acquisitions for £1 last year.

But critics said the business was outdated and had failed to adapt to modern standards of retailing. In April it was placed in administration with a pension deficit of £571m.

All 163 stores nationally are likely to close before the end of summer. The Harlow branch is currently selling items at discounted prices but as yet no closure date has been announced.

A statement released by Retail Acquisitions said considerable efforts had been made to sell the business. "Although multiple offers were received, none were able to complete a deal due to the working capital required to secure the future of the company," it read.

"Our thoughts are with the employees. We thank them for their professionalism and hard work."

Harlow MP Robert Halfon said BHS staff had been let down by "crony capitalism" and described the collapse of the company as an absolute injustice.

Commitment

"It is a hugely sad and anxious time for Harlow BHS workers," he said "I recently met with the manager and some staff of our town's store and discussed with him just how dedicated the staff are, their commitment to BHS and their determination to carry on despite what has occurred."

"I will be pushing to do everything possible for Harlow workers to help them find new jobs, get their redundancy money soon and guarantee their pensions."

Mr Halfon has spoken to the Secretary of State for Business, Sajid

Javid, about the BHS situation during which he called for reforms "to ensure that companies are sold properly and pensions are guaranteed".

"I thank the Harlow trade unions, particularly USDAW, for all their work in looking after the Harlow BHS staff. I am pleased to work with them and any Harlow worker who needs assistance."

On Tuesday Mr Halfon said the BHS pension scheme is being examined by the pensions regulator to see whether the company can afford to pay the them itself.

If it is unable to do so, the Pension Protection Fund guarantees 100 per cent of the pension for any workers over the scheme's normal pension age and 90 per cent for everyone else yet to retire.

Meanwhile, Star readers have taken to social media to express their opinions about the closure.

Writing on the Star's Facebook page, Deb Butler said: "BHS needed to drag itself into the modern age which it sadly failed to do."

John Shelton added: "This is another nail in the coffin for our once thriving town centre" while Gill Didcock commented: "Will miss BHS, especially as Marks and Spencer has gone too."

Shoppers' views

"I have lived in Harlow all my life and I can remember it being built. It is sad. I am going to go shopping in the sale there now. I don't so much get my clothes from there but I buy a lot of homeware. With Marks and Spencer gone too I think there is now a void in the town."

Roger French (66)

"I have not been to BHS for a long time but I think my mum comes here quite a lot. I don't think the town would be affected that much as there is quite a lot of other shops to keep it going."

Lennie Pepper (30)

"What is there here? With Marks and Spencer gone there is no reason for me to come to the town centre. We now go to Bishop's Stortford for Marks and Spencer. We live in Staple Tye where there is a Lidl and a Poundland so we often just stay there."

Geoff Taylor (72)

"What is there now in town? Now BHS is closing I will come to town less often. There is nothing here anymore for me to come to town for."

Carole Kitchener (71)

"It is very sad. I went in there this morning but did not see anything to buy. We will not have a department store any more."

Volunteers needed for ambulance car service

AMBULANCE chiefs are appealing for more volunteers for a service which takes patients to routine appointments at hospitals and treatment centre.

The East of England Ambulance Service said particularly short of drivers for the non-emergency service in west Essex and Cambridgeshire.

Gill Briggs, of the patient transport service team, said: "The ambulance car service plays an essential role providing patient care and we're seeking new recruits."

"Prospective volunteers will need to pass a Disclosure and Barring Service check, be in good health and hold a clean driving licence. They must also have, and have a safe, clean and reliable four-door vehicle."

Volunteers are not paid for their time but do receive an allowance to compensate for driving expenses.

CCTV of suspected meal bill dodgers

POLICE investigating an allegation that a group of diners left a restaurant in Harlow without paying have released a CCTV image of people they want to identify.

It has been alleged that the group – three men and a woman – ordered food and drink at the Miller and Carter restaurant, in London Road, but left the premises without settling the bill.

The incident took place at 3.20pm on Wednesday, April 13.

Anyone who recognises the people in the CCTV image is asked to contact PC Steven Bowring at Harlow police station on the non-emergency 101 number.

Dance teacher handed medal at special show

Brenda celebrates honour with big bash at the Playhouse

gemma.gardner@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A DANCE teacher from Harlow was presented with her British Empire Medal in front of family, friends and students.

Brenda Taylor, of Three Horseshoes Road, decided against collecting her medal from Buckingham Palace, instead organising a celebratory show featuring students and former pupils at Harlow Playhouse.

Brenda was awarded her BEM in the New Year's Honours list for services to dance.

"It was a complete surprise," she said at the time. "I thought I haven't served in Iraq or anything and couldn't believe I was to receive an honour. I did not tell anyone but as soon as the honours were announced there has been great excitement."

"Lots and lots of people have been calling me to say congratulations, even people I knew back in the '50s."

Exceptional

The Brenda Taylor School of Dance and Performing Arts is a Theatre School was established in 1965, and offers training in all aspects of dance and performing arts for children from three years old and upwards to professional level.

An hour-long performance at Harlow Playhouse on Sunday celebrated both Brenda and her work in both the community of Harlow and outside.

"People said they would always feel better spending time with Brenda," her daughter Kathryn told the audience. "My dad [who died 20 years ago] would have been so proud of my mum."

"Most people wouldn't have the first idea about her background. She lived in poverty in the early days. She should have gone on to have a future in ballet but the family situation made this impossible."

"Brenda developed the school very quickly and it grew to be one of the biggest dance schools in the area," Kathryn added.

Dotted about the audience of family, friends and former students was BAFTA nominated actress Charlotte Spencer, who is a former pupil of the school, paid tribute to "grandmother" Brenda.

"You really deserve this," she told the audience.

Harlow MP Robert Halfon also attended the event and offered his congratulations to Brenda.

Wonderful

He said: "It's wonderful to be here this afternoon to watch a wonderful performance from all your students. You are transforming the lives of these students."

He added: "Harlow without you is like the Tower of London without ravens. It's been an honour to say thank you to you from Harlow and all the young people. This is thoroughly deserved."

Brenda was presented her BEM on stage by the Lord Lieutenant of Essex, Lord Petre, who said: "It's a very well deserved honour."

Brenda, who thanked all those involved in arranging the evening, said: "It's a little bit overwhelming - I didn't realise I was so good. I'm really proud of this, everyone has been so nice. What a wonderful life I've had."

She added: "I am proud that I am listed as being from Harlow as I have always lived here and I am not from a wealthy background."

"This award shows that if you want something you can get it if you work for it."

Relief as ugly flats that have long stood empty are torn down

BULLDOZER: The demolition of the Wissants flats

A BLOCK of flats described by many as an eyesore has finally been wiped from the Harlow landscape.

Work on the demolition of the council-owned building at Wissants, which has stood empty and boarded up since 2011, started this week.

The block of 24 bedsits was used as part of a move-on scheme for young offenders but when funding was cut it was closed. Since then it has been the target for anti-social behaviour and vandalism, resulting in complaints from local residents.

Planning permission to redevelop the site to provide family homes for people on the town's housing needs register was granted to Circle Housing South Anglia last year. Land adjacent to the site will also be turned into parking spaces.

In a statement accompanying its planning application, CHSA said: "The redevelopment affords the opportunity to secure a better form of development on site of higher visual quality and which is in keeping with the residential development of the area."

On Tuesday, ward councillor Nick Churchill tweeted: "Delighted to see that the old Wissants flats have been demolished at last. Well done @SouthAnglia, look forward to seeing the new build."

'Paedophile hunter' undeterred by death

From page 1 grooming on May 28 and subsequently released on bail pending further inquiries.

"On May 31 police were called by the ambulance service to an address in Harlow. Officers entered the property and found a 44-year-old man who was declared deceased."

She added: "We are aware of videos filmed and published by a third party circulating on social media purporting to show an encounter between the arrested man and a member of the public but cannot comment further at this stage. In line with legislation Essex Police has referred this matter to the IPCC."

Mr Wood posted on his Facebook page: "It has come to my attention that after being released on police bail Terry was found after taking his own life. This has come as shocking news and out of respect for his family the video has now been taken down."

Massive

"Online grooming is a massive issue in the world today and I am trying to do something productive."

Mr Wood held an online question and answer session on Tuesday of last week in which he attempted to justify his actions with a 15-minute video posted on YouTube.

The video has since been taken down and the YouTube account appears to be inactive.

He has since posted on his Facebook page, which has 2,077 likes: "What happened with Terry was unfortunate, however it will not deter me from continuing with Catfish the Hunter and taking sexual predators off of the street."

Questions but no answers

SIR, One of the important facts missing from the EU debate is a description from the Brexiteers of what life would be like if the UK were to vote to leave.

How would they treat the EU nationals who are resident here at the moment? If they close the borders from day one and these residents went home for a holiday, how would they re-enter the UK? How would they establish residency at the border? Imagine the queues at the airports.

Would these residents be given work permits based on a points system? Workers in the health and care industries would be okay but what about self-employed plumbers, carpenters and bricklayers, or all those working in hotels and cafes. Are they key workers?

Could the millions of permits be processed in the two-year transition period? What would happen to those who failed the points test? Would the UK deport people who have lived here for years, worked hard, paid their taxes and sent their children to school?

So what do the Brexiteers actually want? I think we should be told before June 23.

Simon Carter
Mark Hall Moors, Harlow

It's ill-advised and ill-timed

SIR, I wish I could agree with Kevin Forbes that the EU referendum provides an opportunity to redirect our government to do what we wish (Letters, May 26). Would that were true.

All it does is to allow us take part in an ill-advised and ill-timed attempt by the Prime Minister to end in-fighting within the Tory party, which itself is unlikely to happen.

The referendum has already made the situation worse. The Prime Minister has alienated many of our neighbours in Europe and has renegotiated to the advantage of the already most advantaged rather than on those issues which would benefit ordinary people. We are simply given the opportunity to vote in or out.

The debate, which has been superficial, has confused the electorate rather than informed it. It has been dominated by a debased morality based on power, fear, selfishness and deception.

Moreover, the vote could well divide the UK. A straight majority of votes will decide the issue and there is no minimum turnout required.

We are not asked for our views but simply allowed to vote for one of two alternatives, neither of which addresses the real problems.

I can understand people not wanting to remain in the present EU run largely for the rich and powerful. What I can't understand is the belief that the unrepresentative Westminster parliament will provide anything better. Westminster is more responsible for the present situation in the UK than is Brussels.

The UK is one of the wealthiest economies in the world. Why should it demand more? Its wealth and power just needs to be fairly distributed among us all.

We already have more power and influence than most countries but our use of it has often made the situation worse rather than better.

The UK parliament already has the power to protect the poor and disadvantaged, to provide housing for all our citizens and to control the excesses of the rich and their exploitation of limited resources which would allow the rest of us to have a better life. They must not blame Brussels for their failure to do so.

We have belonged to the EU for 43 years and yet little mention has been of the effect our withdrawal will have on the other 27 nations. The truth is we don't care.

Perhaps it is the other European nations which should be having a referendum on whether they want us to remain.

Dennis Nadin
Willowfield, Harlow

Brexit a vote for freedom

SIR, I didn't read the argument for and against leaving the EU in Star. Frankly, I'm too sick of the same hype being repeatedly peddled by both sides which are long on emotion and short on good, honest, relevant facts.

A little of one's own thought can always help, rather than trusting those with something to gain from either course of action.

What do we gain from EU membership? Stability? Maybe or maybe not. Certainly there will be a financial hiccup when we leave but no-one in either camp truly knows the longer term effects.

Besides, it's not all just about finance - there's this small thing called freedom that's worth preserving even at some cost. And is the EU even stable, financially or otherwise?

Trading partners? They'll not just go away if we leave. In any case, in 2015 the Office for National Statistics' figure is just 45 per cent of exports going to the EU; most of our sales are outside Europe.

Subsidies for some areas? We pay in far more than we get back. Of course, those receiving the odd pound or two want to stay, never mind that the rest of us cough up far more than they get.

What else? VAT? That wonderfully inefficient scheme where tax is repeatedly paid and reclaimed, employing a small army of expensive accountants. We used to have a very efficient scheme called purchase tax that we were forced to abandon.

The proposed EU trade agreement with the United States will give effective control of our government to US companies. Great idea.

A pan-EU army? Word is that Germany already has command of some Dutch army and navy forces, with Poland and the Czech republic lined up to be absorbed. No thanks, even if the stay camp are in denial.

Control of our borders? Not while we're in the EU. And don't forget that every net immigrant from Europe is a net drain on scarce resources - whether the NHS, housing schools, road and rail infrastructure and don't forget the gas, electricity, water, sewage infrastructures which are all in a critical state already.

We're promised the EU can reform but all of David Cameron's efforts to move the EU mountain have resulted merely in relocation of a tiny molehill, and only temporarily at that.

Lately the EU even seems to have acquired powers to block from power any national government the EU deems undesirable. Do we really want unelected eurocrats saying who's allowed to govern the UK?

But then, maybe I'm missing something about EU membership.

Mike Scott
Great Plumtree, Harlow

EU is a force for stability

SIR, While agreeing with Kevin Forbes on the necessity of voting in the referendum, I feel we are being asked for a vote we don't want.

In last year's General Election election the pro-Referendum parties (the Tories and UKIP) had less than 50 per cent of the total vote.

It seems to me we are being required to intervene in a dispute between the two wings of the Conservative Party - the ultra-right personified by Boris Johnson and Michael Gove and the slightly more moderate personified by David Cameron and George Osborne.

We have been subjected to a bombardment of facts of varying degrees of credibility laced with personal insults. One fact remains - my parents lived through two world wars originating in European nationalism. I am old enough to remember being in London during the 1940 bombing and, in 1952 during National Service, seeing the appalling destruction in German cities like Hamburg.

In 1975, seeing the Common Market as a possible assurance against another European catastrophe, I voted to stay in. This time I feel that in as much as the EU remains a force for stability and for the sake of my children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren, I shall vote remain.

Brian D Mooney
Nettewellbury Farm, Harlow

Make your voices heard

SIR, I have received my postal ballot for the EU referendum so the Star's two-page spread (May 26) on the issue was very timely.

I note the two leading advocates for the remain and leave campaigns are prominent Tories on Harlow Council. I am pleased that these two young(ish) councillors have taken the responsibility to help shape our future.

Interesting though their arguments were, I was even more impressed with Kevin Forbes' plea for voter participation. The forthcoming referendum really is the most important democratic vote anyone of us is likely to have in our lifetime.

No-one should abrogate their moral duty to express their preference in this vote, especially the young who continually remind us that they too have a voice and that they are our future.

If our young voters fail to engage in this monumental debate about our country's future they might spend the remainder of their long lives in regret as our country charts a course contrary to their hopes.

In addition to the usual remain arguments over trade, security and the dangers of the unknown, I would invite readers to focus on the EU's success in protecting our environment, safeguarding animal rights, enhancing employment protection, tackling discrimination, promoting consumer protection over food labelling, product safety and unfair mobile charging.

The case for remaining has, I feel, been successfully made. Agree with me or not, I implore the people of Harlow to make their voices heard by voting.

Guy Mitchinson
Joyneys Field, Harlow

Leaving will risk so much

SIR, I hate the current Punch and Judy type of politics between David Cameron and Boris Johnson which appears to more about who will lead their party than the real debate over the future of our relationship in Europe.

The debate has raised important issues including migration and immigration. However, simply walking away won't solve this important issue.

What should be the real issue is the impact and effect this decision will have on Harlow.

What we know is Harlow has been a key player in the European new towns platform which has enabled us to be part of European projects that have generated over 10 million euros.

A new and exciting chapter has commenced in Harlow with the development of the Enterprise Zone. We know many companies which will bring new jobs and opportunities are European based.

Harlow is connected to Cambridge to provide education and employment which are directly linked to partners in Europe. In my own profession of nursing we welcome and want European nurses to come and work at PAH. I know many health and safety laws have been brought in to protect us all as a direct result of our collective European partnerships. One of the biggest regional employers, Stansted Airport, relies on European trade.

All this will be placed at risk if Harlow residents don't put Harlow first and vote to stay in the EU.

This town was built and grew from migrant workers and I include myself in this group. We have built a town that has achieved so much and our collective future is positive.

Harlow has a strong and empowering voice to support others for the benefit of not just the few but the many. We can't lose these principles and values just because of the in-fighting within the current Conservative government.

The decision on the June 23 is critical and I urge as many Harlow residents who care about Harlow to vote to remain in the EU.

Dad's moving tribute to 'fun and caring' son

Teenager killed in crash was 'one of a kind'

Gemma Gardner

gemma.gardner@hertsexnews.co.uk

A FATHER has paid an emotional tribute to his "caring, loving, fun" son who died after a crash in Harlow.

Liam Brown, 18, who lived in Harlow, died on Sunday, May 29 at the Royal London Hospital after suffering head injuries in a collision near The Stow on May 25.

Liam was on his way home from work when his black Honda motorcycle was in collision with a black Mini Cooper in First Avenue.

Inquiries into the collision are ongoing and witnesses who have yet to come forward are asked to contact police.

This week his father, Stephen, paid an emotional tribute to his son. In a statement released through police, he said: "Liam, known as Biggie, was born on July 6, 1997, the best day of my life.

"We were inseparable and got on like best friends. He knew when I was Dad and he knew when I was his friend.

Proud

"Liam made me proud from his first breath to his last. He was my prince and I was his king."

"He was going to be a huge success," said Mr Brown. "Liam had studied hard for the past three years and was only three months away from becoming a fully qualified Gas Safe engineer."

He continued: "Our relationship was unique and there was very little Liam wouldn't talk to me about. We trusted each other with every aspect of life.

"He was a superb cook and spoil me with some of the best meals I ever ate. He was a very caring, loving, fun boy.

"He could turn a bad situation into buckets of laughter. He had a gift of making others laugh and smile and was a force to be reckoned with when in full flow."

MISSSED: Liam Brown

"I could write forever how wonderful he was and he was most definitely one of a kind," said Stephen. "He was my only child and the best son anyone could have. He will be missed so much."

Liam's sister Mai paid tribute to the "best little brother with the biggest heart".

She said: "I miss my brother more than words can express. He was the best little brother anyone could ever ask for; kind and loyal.

"Liam had the biggest heart. He would always make time for me and everyone else who needed him. Growing up as kids we had the best times together and the memories we shared will live on in my heart.

"Although Liam was growing up and turning into a man he was, and always will be, my baby brother. I will never forget his smile, his jokes and his laughter, and I am so proud of him."

Two fundraising pages have been set up to raise money for Liam's funeral.

One was launched by Lauren Salt and her partner George, with whom Liam worked as an apprentice.

Lauren said: "He was such a lovable, hardworking and polite young man."

GOAL: Council chairwoman Edna Stevens with a team of walking footballers

Keeping fit and active with walking football sessions - and it's a great way to socialise

A HARLOW sports club is helping those less able to keep fit by introducing walking football sessions.

In her first engagement since being elected, the chairwoman of Harlow Council Edna Stevens tried out the game with a group at Paringdon Sports and Social Club.

The club currently holds free walking football sessions on its 3G artificial pitch every Thursday from 1pm-2pm.

The sessions are for those who still have a passion for playing the game but cannot play at a fast pace.

The rules of walking football are much the same as its speedier cousin but the squads are smaller, free kicks are indirect, kick-ins replace throws, there is no offside rule. The ball must also be kept below head height.

Walking football is non-contact and anyone that sprints, runs or jogs while the ball is in play will be penalised with a free-kick awarded to the other team.

It is open for both men and women to attend.

The sessions are funded by Harlow Council in partnership with Active Harlow and Active Essex.

Councillor Stevens, who joined a group of keen walking footballers before their match, said: "Walking football is a great way for people to keep active and continue to enjoy a game of football at a comfortable pace.

"It's so important, especially as you get older, to keep as active as you can and walking football is an excellent activity to help people do that.

"It is nice to see that there is a really strong social aspect to the sessions with tea and biscuits being provided after each session."

To get involved call Chris Purvis on (01279) 446435.

Children's home is 'inadequate' - Ofsted

A CHILDREN'S home in Harlow with "serious and widespread failures" has been deemed inadequate by Ofsted inspectors.

The home, which has not named but supports young people with emotional and behaviour issues, is run by a private company and provides for up to four children.

The home was found to have a number of failures across three areas; the overall experiences and progress of children and young people living in the home; how well children and young people are helped and protected; and the impact and effectiveness of leaders and managers.

Among the report's findings, it was found that the home was failing in the following areas:

■ Medication arrangements in the home require significant improvement.

■ The setting does not provide a safe, homely, welcoming environment for children.

■ Staff vetting procedures are not sufficiently robust.

■ Exceptionally high turnover of staff.

■ Record management is poor.

■ Poor leadership and overview of the service, with an inability to effectively identify and address areas of concerns, potentially places children at risk.

■ Staff smoke in view of children, which does not provide good role modelling or help children to understand the dangers of smoking.

Despite these failings, the home was praised by inspectors for their work in several areas including:

■ The children enjoy their time with staff with whom they have been able to develop bonds.

■ The children are making some progress, lead healthier lifestyles and enjoy activities within the community.

■ The children have fun and enjoy new experiences, such as owning a pet and going on their first holiday.

■ The children's views are listened to and when they raise concerns these are responded to.

■ Children and their families, although raising some concerns, continue to say this is a good home.

■ The home demonstrates a strong commitment to children's learning and development.

The children's home is required to make address the concerns over the next month, with all the requirements by June 24.

BRAVE: Carmela-Rose Harkin is currently in remission after receiving a bone marrow transplant at Great Ormond Street Hospital in March

Family hoping to make young girl's fairytale wish come true

Disney dream of five-year-old battling cancer

William Mata

william.mata@hertsexnews.co.uk

THE family of a young girl who is undergoing treatment for cancer is raising funds to make her dream of visiting Disney World come true.

Five-year-old Carmela-Rose Harkin, from Old Harlow, is currently in remission after being diagnosed with acute lymphoblastic leukaemia but needs constant treatment at Great Ormond Street Hospital following a bone marrow transplant.

Her mother, Amanda, 40, said: "The thought of going to Disney World in Florida has kept her going throughout. She would like to think at the end of this there will be a happy ending, but we have to get there first."

Carmela-Rose, who's favourite Disney character is Princess Belle from the animated film-Beauty and the Beast, first showed signs of the condition in September 2013. She began chemotherapy treatment at GOSH shortly after being diagnosed with leukaemia.

After spending time in and out of hospital, she suffered a relapse last October and has since been put on a stronger course of chemotherapy before undergoing a bone marrow transplant in March.

She is still in Great Ormond Street receiving care and has suffered seizures and infections. Now her aunt, Angela Gray, has taken on the role of fairy god-mother by setting up an online appeal to raise £10,000.

Trip

The money should be enough to cover the costs of a trip to Disney World for Carmela-Rose, her mum, father Paul and eight-year-old brother Baxter.

Writing on the fundraising page, Angela, who lives in Harlow, said: "As you can imagine this last nine months has been the worst time ever for Carmela-Rose and her family. This is why we need to raise the money to give them all something to look forward to and start making happy and special memories."

The fundraising campaign had already raised £4,425 and in just 23 days 73 people pledged a donation. In January Baxter raised £855 for GOSH after completing 50 consecutive abseils down a tower at Essex Outdoors Centre in Burnt Mill.

"The campaign is also about awareness, letting people know that children go through all of this," said Amanda. "If anyone was to spend five minutes with any of the children at Great Ormond Street they would be inspired by what they have to go through every day."

She added: "It would mean a lot [to raise the money] because we have not spent a lot of time together as a family. It would be nice to have some memories of being together. She has missed out on so much."

The family hope Carmela-Rose will be well enough to fly to Florida next year. "We call her our own warrior princess," added Amanda. "We need a light at the end of the tunnel."

Countywide survey on council services

CASH-strapped Essex County Council is asking residents to tell it what they think of the services it provides.

The authority, which has to cut spending by more than £1m every week for the next four years, is carrying out a survey of 19,000 households across the county, selected at random to represent a cross section of the population.

It covers areas such as service provision, transport and community safety.

Council leader David Finch said: "We have spoken a lot about the tough times ahead and the challenges we face. Now, more than ever, it is absolutely vital we spend our resources on the areas that matter."

He added: "This is just one of the ways we engage with people who use our services and is important as it gives us the opportunity to take stock of views and ensure we are putting our resources where it really matters."

"We can also use the results to track performance and monitor the impact of the decisions we make, meaning we can respond quickly to what residents tell us."

The survey takes about 10 minutes to complete.

So many kittens but we haven't enough space to look after them

KITTEN season is well and truly upon us. We have had 14 kittens come into our care in the past fortnight, having either been dumped or brought in via heavily pregnant mother cats.

We simply do not have enough space to cater for all the kittens being abandoned.

We have found that kitten season is starting earlier and earlier with females getting pregnant as young as 20 weeks old. We now recommend that all kittens should be neutered at 16 weeks.

You may have heard that it's good for cats to have a litter of kittens before they are spayed but this isn't true. Once she has been spayed, your kitten will be able to do all the things cats enjoy doing, like going outdoors, climbing trees and playing.

Having your cat snipped will protect him from a disease called Feline Immunodeficiency Virus (FIV) which is the same as HIV in people. It is spread through cat bites, often between males fighting over a female.

We offer subsidised neutering of cats for only £10, so please contact our clinic to find out more.

We have lots of kittens as well as older cats looking for new homes so please check out our website to find the purr-fect new edition.

■ We now offer vaccinations at our clinic. There is no appointment system so just turn up on a Thursday or Friday morning between 10am-1pm. We offer a full health check with every full course or booster vaccination.

Skydive squad take the plunge for charity

DOWN TO EARTH: The group of 10 who raised money for charity in a sponsored skydive

A TEAM of 10 daredevils took to the skies to raise more than £5,000 for charity.

The group took a leap into the unknown when they threw themselves out of a plane during a sponsored skydive.

Linda Pring, Spencer Christmas, Ashley Wiseman, Tim Seedhouse, Lewis Jackson and Sam Snelling along with hospital workers Nikki Harbinson, Keeley Maynard, Stacey Maynard and Maddison Pilcher were raising money for the Princess Alexandra Hospital Charity.

Together they have so far topped £5,000 for the charity which works to improve patient care and facilities, purchase special equipment and invest in research which is beyond the scope of the NHS.

Fundraising co-ordinator Jamie Pring said none of the team had completed a skydive before and there were a few nervous faces before the plane took off.

"However, they were all grinning from ear to ear by the end," he added.

Disabled parking at PAH to remain free

Hospital shelves proposal to charge blue badge holders

Gemma Gardner

gemma.gardner@hertsexsexnews.co.uk

PLANS to introduce parking fees for disabled drivers at Princess Alexandra Hospital have been put on hold following a public backlash.

Last month the hospital trust announced that blue badge holders would have to fork out £2.50 to park in the hospital grounds as the NHS trust which runs PAH looked for ways to plug a £38m financial deficit.

Previously, badge holders were exempt from the charges which apply to other visitors and patients using the paying-and-display car parks.

As well as introducing a charge for disabled drivers, the trust said it would scrap the existing standard charge for the first two hours and replace it with a £3 charge for up to three hours.

A spokesman said ending subsidies such as car parking would enable it to channel the maximum resources into patient care and added the changes were being made following consultations with staff and members of the patients panel.

Harlow MP Robert Halfon, who has previously campaigned for all parking charges at hospitals to be scrapped, branded the decision to introduce a charge for disabled drivers as "completely wrong".

But on Thursday he announced the move had been shelved for a year following discussions with PAH chief executive Phil Morley.

"It is good news that the hospital has agreed to delay the decision for a year and use the time to consult with residents who are disabled and need to park at the hospital," said Mr Halfon.

"I have discussed this issue on a number of occasions with the hospital and I know this will provide comfort to patients and disabled visitors and remove anxiety that many would have had if the charges had been introduced this time."

He added: "I am hugely grateful to Phil

Morley and his team for the postponement and for listening to representations from me and local residents.

"It is another example of why the staff at Princess Alexandra Hospital really are at the heart of our community in Harlow."

The increase in parking costs for all other motorists will go ahead as planned. But not everyone has welcomed the move.

Commenting on the Harlow Star Facebook page, Terence White wrote: "They should pay too why put it on hold!!"

"I feel if they can make it from there car into the hospital they can make it to the pay meter too."

While Etienne Wolmarans added: "Already getting reserved parking everywhere."

"It's a privilege that is still offered free of charge while paying people have to struggle to find any space."

"What happened to equality? Pay up like everyone else."

Appeal to find men who helped victim of sexual assault

FOUR men who came to the aid of a woman after she was the victim of a sexual assault in Harlow town centre are being asked to contact police.

The 30-year-old woman was walking in Market Square at about 2.20am on Sunday, May 8, when she was pinned down and kissed by a man who was not known to her.

He is described as white, bald, around 30 years old and clean shaven.

Following the incident four men helped the women and police are now asking them to contact them to help with their investigation.

The men, or anyone who believes they know the suspect or has further information about the incident, are asked to contact PC Melissa Bailey or Sergeant Steve Parish at Harlow police station on the Essex Police non-emergency 101 number or Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555111.

Drug driver banned

A DRIVER stopped by police for not wearing a seatbelt has been banned for three years for drug driving.

Lenny Brinkley, 26, of Elizabeth Way, Harlow was pulled over during a road safety operation in Harlow in March. Officers suspected he was under the influence of drugs and tested him with a roadside drugs kit which gave positive results for both cocaine and cannabis.

Brinkley appeared at Chelmsford Magistrates Court last Tuesday and pleaded guilty to drug driving. He was disqualified from driving for three years and ordered to complete an educational course about the importance of wearing a seatbelt.

He was also ordered to pay a £100 fine, £85 costs and a £20 victim surcharge.

Speaking after the case, Sergeant David Rudd from the Casualty Reduction Unit said: "The new roadside testing kits mean we are better equipped than ever to detect drivers who put innocent road users at risk by getting behind the wheel under the influence of drugs."

Volunteers thanked

THE contribution of St Clare Hospice's 550-strong army of helpers is being celebrated during National Volunteers Week.

The Hastingwood hospice relies on volunteers in a variety of roles, ranging from helping in its eight charity shops to newer positions such as complementary therapists.

The hospice will be holding a series of parties and afternoon teas to thank them for their service.

In brief

Firms getting down to business at exhibition

HARLOW: More than 100 organisations are taking part in the 7th Harlow Business Exhibition which is being held at Harlow Science Park, in London Road, today (Thursday).

The event will be opened by Harlow MP Robert Halfon and it is expected that around 500 visitors will attend.

Among the exhibitors are Public Health England, Places for People, Price Bailey, Longmores Solicitors, DroneCraft, Superfast Essex and the Star. Both the EU 'in' and 'out' campaigns will have stands and Rose Optician will be holding a mock EU referendum.

The event runs from 10am to 4pm and both admission and car parking is free.

Bus fare consultation

ESSEX: Bus users have less than two weeks to share their views on proposed fare rises on services provided by Essex County Council.

A consultation was launched last month on plans for an increase in fares on non-commercial services provided by the council, including a number in Harlow, by five per cent over each of the next three years.

The consultation ends next Friday (June 17). To take part visit www.essex.gov.uk/busfares.

Sight charity's advice

HARLOW: About 100 people attended an exhibition to raise awareness of what help and support is available to people who are blind or visually impaired to cope with everyday living.

The event was organised by the charity Support 4 Sight and held at Harlow Central Library.

CHARITY CUT: Poppy Drake with her lopped locks

Poppy's new hairstyle is a shortcut to help others

A KIND-hearted six-year-old raised more than £150 for charity after parting ways with her long hair.

Poppy Drake, who lives with her family in Willowfield, Harlow, donated 10 inches of her locks to the Little Princess Trust which provides wigs to children who have lost their hair as a result of treatment for cancer.

The Abbotsweld Primary School pupil decided she wanted to donate her hair after her aunt Katie underwent chemotherapy. The sponsored cut took place at Tangles salon in Bush Fair.

Mum Hailey said: "At first I had butterflies but now I am really proud of her."

"After Katie had been ill and had chemotherapy Poppy said she wanted to donate her hair to make wigs. She was really excited about going."

Hailey added: "She has never had a lot of hair cut off since she was born and I kept saying that no-one could recognise her."

"She was in the hairdressers for over an hour but when I went to pay they said they did not want any money."

Poppy had hoped to raise £100 but the total now stands at £165 which will be donated to Little Princess Trust along with the hair.

Airfield vigil and service will mark Somme centenary

Public invited to attend service of commemoration

Ken Morley

star@hertsessexnews.co.uk

AN ALL-night vigil is to be held at North Weald Airfield to mark the 100th anniversary of one of the bloodiest battles in British military history.

The Battle of the Somme started on July 1, 1916 and lasted for 141 days. By the time the campaign ended on November 18 more than one million people had been killed or wounded.

To mark the anniversary, airfield officers dressed in the uniforms of the British Army in 1916 will mount a vigil through the night, starting at dusk on Thursday, June 30 when the vice-chairman of Epping Forest Council, Cllr David Stallan, and other invited guests will light a brazier which will tend throughout the night.

At 7.30am the following morning – the exact hour when troops left their trenches for the start of the battle – a public service of commemoration for people of all faiths will take place. Among those attending will be council chairman Jeanne Lea.

The service will begin with the Battle fact file

- There were 419,654 British casualties, 500,000 German and 204,253 French
- The first day of fighting ended with the heaviest loss of life – 19,240 soldiers – in a single day's fighting in British military history.

- Tanks were first used at the Battle of the Somme.
- 51 Victoria Crosses – the highest military decoration for valour – were awarded, 17 of them posthumously sounds of distant battle being broadcast across the airfield. It will be led by Father James Rodley, from St Andrew's Church, and include readings from the works of the Great War poets.

Cllr Lea said: "If we are to avoid such terrible mistakes again we must never forget the price paid by so many poor men all those years ago or the lessons learnt for future generations."

"I hope that there may be some residents with connections to the battle or indeed the Great War, whether through great grandfathers, uncles or other connections, who will join me for this simple service of commemoration."

She added: "The British Army of 1916 was made up of soldiers from every colour, faith and culture.

Sikhs, Muslims and people of Jewish faith were just some of the soldiers of different faiths who stood prominently beside their Christian comrades in those terrible months and years. I hope people of all faiths and cultures will feel able to stand with me in commemoration of those sad days."

Meanwhile, the council is working with the Royal Gunpowder Mills at Waltham Abbey and the Royal British Legion to commemorate the anniversary, including an exhibition for schoolchildren which is currently being prepared at the airfield.

The exhibition, which will feature a reconstruction of a First World War trench as well as indoor displays, will be open from Saturday, June 25 to Friday, July 1.

THE longest railway tunnel in the world opened in Switzerland last week after being built at a cost of £8bn.

The Gotthard Base Tunnel, which took 17 years to construct, runs for a distance of 35 miles under the Swiss Alps.

It will take high speed trains carrying passengers and cargo 17 minutes to pass through the mountain range dividing northern and southern Europe.

Goods currently transported by lorries on roads will now go by train, saving an estimated one million journeys every year. Engineers had to dig and blast through 73 different types of rock during the construction project.

A spectacular ceremony was held to mark the opening after which 500 people who won a ticket lottery became the first passengers to travel along the full length of the tunnel.

Helping to end suffering of post-natal depression

Family support charity offers hope to victims

William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A MOTHER who suffered from post-natal depression has praised the help she received from family support charity Home-Start Harlow to overcome her illness.

Victoria Jacobs, of The Hides, Harlow, said she felt "completely worthless" before attending the Elpitha course which the charity runs twice a year at the Harlow Study Centre in Waterhouse Moor.

Elpitha is Greek for 'hope' and the next six-week course, which is free, is due to start later this month. To take part people must be referred by their health visitor.

Victoria, 36, is now a happy mum to four-year-old Ellen and Alexa, who is 20 months. But things were very different when she gave birth to her second child.

"I had no capacity to deal with a newborn baby," she said. "It was on the second day it hit me and I was thinking 'I can't do this'."

"I did not suffer post-natal depression with my first daughter but my health visitor saw my mood was low. I did not cope well with my pregnancy and Alexa was a difficult baby. I was feeling very sleep deprived. I had to say to myself I need to start dealing with things."

"I found it difficult to admit. I did not know what was wrong but it was when my daughter was five-and-a-half months when I realised that I could not cope. My health visitor said there were lots of women who were going through the same thing and she put me forward to the Elpitha group to meet with members. It made me feel I was not alone."

NHS health visitor Pat Alexander, who runs the group with Helen Elia, said: "The key thing is to provide a safe environment where people can talk about their problems to each other."

"We build a relationship with the members and equip them with skills before we informally go back and visit them at a later stage."

"People feel that nobody could ever feel the same way and they can find it hard to admit they are struggling. Elpitha is often the first time many have ever opened up about it."

Victoria added: "I had to find some strength to go there and I was very anxious. I remember at the first session they asked us to speak about the pregnancy and the birth. I had a lot of difficult personal things to deal with at that time and also I was made redundant during maternity leave."

"The main thing the group did was make me feel less alone. Pat and Helen, who ran my group, provided me with the tools of how to be assertive and how to react if I was feeling low. We were allowed to express our feelings without being afraid. There was a lot of compassion and empathy."

The course is open to both sexes as men can also be affected by post-natal depression. For more information visit Home-Start Harlow's website at www.homestartharlow.org.uk.

Now's the time to sign up for Midnight Walk

Hundreds register to take part in hospice fundraiser

Ken Morley

star@hertsessexnews.co.uk

WITH just four weeks to go to St Clare Hospice's Midnight Walk, organisers have started the countdown in earnest.

Hundreds of people have already registered to take part but there is still time to sign up and join them on the neon-themed fundraiser through Harlow to celebrate the care and support St Clare gives to families and their loved ones in the local community.

The hospice hopes to raise in the region of £60,000, enough to fund its inpatient unit for two weeks.

The Midnight Walk, which is being sponsored by local solicitors Barnes and Partners and supported by the Star, takes place on Saturday, July 2, starting and finishing at The Water Gardens.

Registration opens at 9.30pm and will be followed by a warm-up routine led by staff from PureGym and Clubbercise Harlow.

Walkers can choose either a 5km or 10km course, both of which will start at 11pm. The cost of taking part is £20 for adults (16 years and over) and £10 for children (11-15 years).

As well as walkers, the hospice is also looking for volunteers to help the event run smoothly. There are plenty of opportunities to get involved – more than 60 people are required to act as marshals along the route to direct walkers and offer encouragement, while volunteers are needed to help with registration and hand out goody packs.

If you want to register for the walk or volunteer to help, you can do so online at www.stclarehospice.org.uk/event/midnight-walk-2016 or by picking up a registration form from the hospice reception at Hastingwood or any of its shops.

For more information visit the website, call organiser, Jade Clarke on (01279) 773756 or email jade.clarke@stclarehospice.org.uk

Churchill paintings expected to sell for over £1m at auction

TWO paintings by former Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill are expected to fetch more than £1m when they go up for auction in Epping next month.

The artwork, owned by a private collector in Essex, will go under the hammer on July 27.

Sir Winston served as MP for Epping between 1924 and 1945. Back then his constituency included what is now recognised as Harlow New Town.

Luke Bodalbhai, head of the fine art department at Boningtons Auctions, said: "The paintings themselves are of more exotic subjects less close to home, depicting the Giza Pyramids at Cairo and Miami Beach, Florida – a reflection of the fact that Churchill painted everywhere he went."

The larger of the two paintings – a 70cm by 90cm canvas oil painting of the pyramids (pictured above) – is worth an estimated £400,000 to £600,000. Painted in 1946, it was given as a gift to Sir Winston's close friend, Field Marshal Jan Christiaan Smuts.

The second picture is a smaller oil on canvas with an auction estimate of between £150,000 and £250,000.

"We are delighted to become the first regional saleroom to offer original paintings by Sir Winston Churchill, a world famous figure with an intimate connection to our local area," said Mr Bodalbhai.

The auction will take place at the Boningtons salesroom in Epping on Wednesday, July 27.

Shop's success is icing on the cake for Kay...

Business is booming for Bush Fair baker

William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

"MAKING cakes is what I do," says 42-year-old Kay Merrington. And after years of baking and selling from home she is now enjoying the sweet taste of success since opening Kay's Cake World at Bush Fair six months ago.

Kay, who lives in Harlow, said her family got her into baking and encouraged her to expand her business.

"I come from a creative background," she said. "I have four boys and one step-daughter... that's how it started. One of them wanted a Moshi Monster cake and I thought I would give it a go."

"After that I started to do more baking and had professional training. I was a carer before and I was also making cakes from home for families and friends but I was finding it difficult to get supplies.

"Everyone was willing me to do it [open the shop]. I was dreading it and afraid as I thought I could never run a business."

But Kay is now living the dream with business rising like one of her sponge cakes. She is also tapping into the party world by selling candles and decorations.

"It is steadily getting busier and busier every week," she said. "We have brought in more party items which go hand in hand with the cake business."

Celebration

"A lot of the business is celebration cakes and also novelty cakes. I have done a life size Koi carp cake, a Minion cake, crash helmets and a wedding cake with a goldfish bowl in the middle tier."

"We go out and do venues, too. We also sell balloons from the shop; we do everything from here. We do the baking and also sell the tools."

She said her business has tapped into a growing interest in baking, fuelled by the runaway success of TV show The Great British Bake-Off, and the demand for supplies.

"There has been an increase in trade and the number of people wanting to bake, but a decrease in the supplies and the tools available," added Kay. "I think the rise could be down to people like to be more creative but also wanting to save a few pence. It's just cake at the end of the day."

"People come to give it a go and we are always happy to give advice."

"I tend to make five or more cakes per week. I am quite fussy, I just like to please everyone. I love the end result and seeing people's faces when they collect the cakes."

Subways roll into the

"FELT like crying," said Billy Lunn of the moment he found out The Square would be hosting more gigs.

Thankfully, they were tears of joy from The Subways' frontman, who has performed at the Fourth Avenue venue at least once a year for the last 15 years.

The three-piece rockers, who played their first ever concert at The Square, will return on Thursday, June 23, as the first act to be announced to play on the reconstructed stage.

"I was so overwhelmed with joy," said Billy. "The last time I was here, it was an acoustic gig and I was actually blubbering on stage because I was so upset."

"Towards the end of the set, it suddenly occurred to me that these would be the last two songs I would ever play on that stage."

Billy's rare solo show in October was thought to be a final farewell to The Square for the man from Welwyn Garden City as the venue closed on December 31.

Harlow Council has since thrown out a developer's plan for building property on the site, meaning venue managers SquareOne Entertainment are free to use the venue again.

As no replacement venue has been lined up to take over The Square, for the time being, will continue in its spiritual home in Fourth Avenue.

"It is people power in action in an incredible way," continued Billy.

"We went to them (about the possibility of a show) as we know everyone is down there resetting the stage and making sure all the lights are working. Everybody is down there getting their hands dirty and working hard to bring it back."

"We have so many incredible memories there and The Square has meant so much to me and the band. I just can't believe we're going to be going back."

He added: "It is something that has really hit home over the past five months, even though people knew it was going to close. We all thought something would happen, but in these past five months, people have said that we really need The Square."

On the back of their fourth, self-titled album, released last year, Billy, alongside bassist Charlotte Cooper and drummer Josh Morgan, have a busy summer of European festivals lined up.

"We have Hurricane and Southside, two huge festivals in Germany at the end of June, so we were looking to get some rehearsals in before," explained Billy, who now lives in Ware.

"Our manager asked where we were thinking of playing and I just said 'The Square' and he said it was a great idea. SquareOne said it would be good to have the incentive to get ready in time. I kind of feel guilty for playing in Austria and not being there helping out."

Featuring plenty of the rock anthems fans have come to expect, The Subways' fourth album was a critical success. But while touring the LP has been a lot of fun – it has also been a tiring period.

"We're still touring the fourth record and we will until September, but then I'm off to university," said Billy. "I'm going to Cambridge to study English Literature, it is insane. During that time, I will still be writing and we'll meet up during the holidays with a view to recording a fifth album when I graduate in 2019.

"We have been doing it for 12 years and it has got to the point where we want to take a break. Josh wants to spend some time with his young daughter and Charlotte is doing Iron Man triathlons."

"I have been into books my whole life," he said of the decision to study English literature. "Over the last few years, I have been cram reading Shakespeare and completing my A-levels. I was the one studying on the train from St Petersburg to Moscow when everyone else was getting drunk

Has Billy got any special plans for the show at The Square? You bet.

A fantastic look into Makin' Steps' future

THE creative minds behind the public performances of Makin' Steps seldom fail to impress and To The Movies was no exception.

Just for starters, the opening bars of the theme to Jaws accompanied by a menacing shark's fin took us through a compilation of more than 20 movies played out in silhouette on the company's big screen before Abbie Middleton Evans and Charlotte and Janine Rudin took us into the Little Shop of Horrors.

There we had our first encounter with Reece Harper, playing the nerdy Seymour.

This impressive young man is growing in confidence, ably demonstrated in his contributions to both musical theatre and dance numbers.

Twelve months ago, when reviewing iTimeTravel, I suggested that the company's backing singers could have been more visible and sure enough that was noted and the huge range and versatility of voices were used to tremendous effect.

What was also interesting was the increase in the number of credible and capable male performers, both dancers and singers, like Danny Evans who came to the fore in the Purple Rain Prince tribute choreographed by Scott Simpson.

There were frequent reminders of the full range of training the students are engaged in at Makin' Steps - musical theatre and singing, modern and street dance, ballet and tap dancing and although I'm becoming more familiar with some of the terminology - step, shuffle, ball-change - I don't think I will ever stop marvelling at how you can move seamlessly from having 20 under-eight-year-old penguins with very Happy Feet to the foot-tapping, hand-clapping, world of Mary Poppins that brought the first half of the show to a close.

Ross Simpson's choreography in numbers like Romeo Must Die suggested that these young performers are terrifyingly streetwise, whilst elsewhere, the sensitive en pointe direction of Lana Williams hinted that they are just as much in command of their minds as their bodies. In fact, Makin' Steps showcased not only the talent of the here and now, but the promise of the future.

Brooke Turnstill and Abbie Middleton Evans are rapidly becoming the Makin' Steps headline acts. When Brooke sang the words I don't want to hurt anymore in I Have Nothing from The Bodyguard, you really felt she meant it and Abbie's rendition of On My Own from Les Mis was of West End standard.

However, there are others honing their skills and beginning to flourish who will soon be snapping at their heels.

The pièce de résistance however came in an extraordinary pre-recorded video montage of 11 of the company's singers performing a capella themes from Star Wars.

Technically flawless, vocally stunning, very, very funny, this feat of theatrical engineering by Ross Simpson and Makin' Steps was phenomenal.

I suggested on the way home that if loaded onto YouTube it would get loads of hits. "No", my seven-year-old daughter informed me "you mean it will go viral". I stand corrected. Well done Margaret Wright and all at Makin' Steps.

Clare's act comes cheap!

HAVE got some massive posters, I can't believe how big my face looks, laughed comedienne Clare Harrison.

The 40-year-old, who lives in Harlow, is publicising her new show Budget J-Lo which she is taking to the Edinburgh Festival Fringe this summer.

Clare only turned her attention to stand-up in 2012. After interviewing celebrities such as Frank Bruno and Phill Jupitus for Harlow TV, she decided she wanted to be in front of a camera.

Now she has a preview at Leicester Square Theatre on Saturday, June 18, before she heads north of the border for a 10-week run in Edinburgh, from August 7 to 18.

"The show has been built over the last couple of years," said Clare.

"I have developed some really crazy characters. Part of the performance is Andrea Love: USA Life Coach who is a very positive type and has the ambition to make everyone feel amazing.

"I developed her from my own experiences of being life-coached."

She added: "For the second half, I come on as myself and talk about my own experiences of living in Essex on the dole and shopping at Poundland.

"Someone once said that I looked a bit like Jennifer Lopez, but I obviously can't afford her facials, so I see myself as a Poundland J-Lo. I think a lot of people are a discount version of a celebrity, I see Philip Schofield as a Debenhams George Clooney.

"I've been asking people to tweet in their own like for likes."

With a misheard lyrics quiz, tales of being a yoga teacher in India and plenty of self-deprecating humour, Budget J-Lo promises to be a fun, energetic and affordable night out.

Clare Harrison will perform Budget J-Lo at Leicester Square Theatre in London at 7pm on Saturday, June 18. Tickets cost £5 and can be bought from boxoffice@leicestersquaretheatre.com.

Seeing the light at special show

CHILDREN with learning difficulties are being offered a multi-sensory introduction to theatre in Light Show presented by Oily Cart.

Kids aged three to 11 with autism and profound and multiple learning disabilities (PMLD) are invited to experience a day at the beach through soft lighting and music.

"The show is a joy from start to finish," said Max Reinhardt, who is the musical director and has been part of Oily Cart company for 35 years.

"From a musical point of view it is quite minimalist and accessible. There are both fun parts and peaceful moments.

"But it is a show that you can touch and feel as well as see and hear. There is a water sequence, parts you can smell and parts you can touch to provide a multi-sensory experience.

"Also everyone gets a space box, which is a lot like a tiny computer in your hands (which flashes colours throughout)."

Tooting-based Oily Cart has created a visual wonderland for the show which also explores the theme of identity.

Light Show offers a fun experience for children with learning difficulties and a chance to engage with cast members.

Max added: "This is the second run of the show and it has already been to lots of places. Parents of autistic children would be familiar with this type of social story.

"If parents are unsure they can download the story from the Oily Cart website and find out more information."

Oily Cart Presents Light Show at Harlow Playhouse on Tuesday, June 14 and Wednesday, June 15. It is suitable for children aged between three and 11. Shows for audiences with autism will be held at 1.30pm and 5.30pm on Tuesday.

Shows for audiences with profound and multiple learning disabilities (PMLD) will be held at 10am and 1pm on Wednesday. Bookings should be made at Harlow Playhouse box office by calling (01279) 431945.

Russell playing the nice guy on film and in life

He has a reputation for being tricky, but Susan Griffin finds Russell Crowe in jovial mood, when they meet to discuss his latest movie. Perhaps its title, The Nice Guys, has rubbed off a little...

Russell Crowe has a reputation for being tricky in interviews, but the actor appears in good spirits today.

He's just arrived from Cannes, where he's been busy promoting his latest movie, The Nice Guys.

"It's the funniest thing, because you're so appreciative that something like Cannes exists, but really, from an actor's perspective, it's a dog and pony show that you just cannot wait to leave," he confesses of the prestigious film festival.

Crowe looks well, dressed in a blue polo shirt and grey suit, and noticeably slimmer than the rotund physique he sports in The Nice Guys, a buddy action movie set in Seventies Hollywood.

He plays hired enforcer Jackson Healy, opposite Ryan Gosling's bumbling, and near-fraudulent, personal investigator Holland March. "We've talked in the past about working together, but we didn't realise it would be with a 6ft-tall smoking bee in the back of the car," Crowe notes with a laugh, referencing a particularly trippy scene from the film.

HAPPY DAYS:
Russell Crowe

"There are aspects to this that neither of us have done before, which is why it was so attractive. It felt fresh," the 52-year-old adds.

Directed by Shane Black (Iron Man 3) and produced by Joel Silver (The Matrix, Sherlock Holmes), who first worked together on Lethal Weapon back in the Eighties, the plot sees March and Healy become unlikely partners in their search for a missing girl.

Described as a 'film noir with elements of comedy', the movie makes the most of the period setting, with its loud palette, eclectic fashion and ultra-flashy settings, juxtaposed with the seedier side of retro Hollywood.

"Initially, I was kind of fearful of L.A., and in that strange, youthful arrogance, the fear turns into a superiority complex," admits Crowe, grinning beneath knowing blue eyes as he recalls his arrival in L.A. back in 1992.

"I was fond of making quotes about Los Angeles as being the last place on Earth I'd live, but in reality, as you get a little wiser I suppose, you look at that town and it's kind of a beautiful place.

"I'm not just talking about the weather or its geographical location, but the City Of Angels opens its wings every single day for the dreamers and the gypsies – and everybody who has aspiration in our business. People go there and they create incredible lives for themselves, because there are so many like-minded people around."

This wistful outlook seems in contradiction to the bad-tempered actor we've read about in the papers, a man who's allegedly been involved in numerous altercations over the years. Perhaps he's simply mellowed with age and experience...

Born in New Zealand, Crowe lived in Australia for 10 years from the age of four, in which time he appeared in a couple of TV series, before returning to his country of birth.

At 21, he moved back to Australia, and after stints in Neighbours and Living With The Law, was cast in 1990's The Crossing, which earned him a Best Actor nod at the Australian Film Institute Awards.

He didn't win that year – but the following two years he did, for Proof and Romper Stomper, even travelling to Cannes for the former; Crowe's "first overseas trip outside Australia and New Zealand".

His Romper Stomper performance also caught the eye of Sharon Stone, who wanted him for her Western, 1995's The Quick And The Dead.

By now, Crowe's star was well and truly rising, and after a string of big-shot movies – Virtuosity alongside Denzel Washington; L.A. Confidential alongside Kevin Spacey and Guy Pearce – he earned his first Academy Award nomination in 2000, for his portrayal of a tobacco company whistle-blower in The Insider.

Two years later, he was nominated again for his performance as Nobel Prize-winner John Nash in A Beautiful Mind, while he'd won the Best Actor the year before, for Gladiator.

"I shot that in 1999 and there is not a single day of the year where it won't be on prime-time TV somewhere in the world," he remarks of Ridley Scott's historical epic.

"My kids [he has Charles, 13, and nine-year-old Tennyson with ex-wife Danielle Spencer] wanted to see it at Christmas for the first time. My youngest one loved it, my oldest one talked all the way through it. I didn't sit and watch it with them but the people who did told me afterwards," he reveals.

"I think because my eldest has explored that film so deeply on the internet, he feels he has a sort of connection with it, so he was looking for all the mistakes that are listed, rather than actually watching the movie."

This is nothing new, apparently.

"My eldest one is very critical in that regard, yes," says Crowe, laughing. "Not just of my work but of anything. He's a real sponge and a big reader."

Crowe tends to watch his movies at the premiere and, bar catching a snippet here and there, "I never watch them again".

"My ex-wife said something funny one night when we were coming back from the opening night of [2007's] 3:10 To Yuma," he recalls, eyes gleaming with amusement. "She said, 'It must be so hard watching yourself on screen'. I was like, 'Well thanks very much! I'd never thought of it from that perspective, but now I will for the rest of my days.'"

In the 13 years since his last Oscar nomination, he's appeared in the likes of Master And Commander: American Gangster, State Of Play, Les Misérables and Man Of Steel.

He's also dabbled in directing, first with documentary and shorts, before making his feature film debut with 2014's The Water Diviner.

It received mixed reviews, but that's not deterred him from giving directing another bash.

"I've got to wait until the passion for something is really deep and excites me. I've been offered a lot of stuff to direct, but it's all five people talking in a room, and you can see by The Water Diviner, I've got epic aspirations," Crowe adds with a grin. "I'm waiting for something a little bit bigger."

Good value for money all-rounder

FIRST DRIVE SsangYong Tivoli XEV

Stewart Smith

SOUTH Korean car maker SsangYong is best known for producing affordable SUVs and rugged off-road motors with go-anywhere attributes, many of them 4x4s.

But last year, the brand broke into the compact SUV market with the Tivoli – a value for money all-rounder which has proved something of a hit.

Already the Tivoli has become the company's most successful product, with sales topping 64,000 around the world.

Now SsangYong has gone a step further by launching a stretched model, the Tivoli XEV to provide even more carrying capacity and practicality and it will be on sale in the UK in July.

According to SsangYong, XEV stands for Exciting Lifestyle Vehicle and the extra dimensions, updated styling and above-average list of useful and practical standard equipment should appeal to those looking for value for money.

The XEV shares the same platform and wheelbase as the regular Tivoli, but is almost 10 inches longer, which results in the load capacity being increased to 720 litres – up from 423 litres.

To create even more room, the UK version comes without a spare tyre but with a tyre inflation kit as standard.

In the UK the XEV will be a five-seater and the additional interior space means that six-footers in the back will have plenty of head and legroom.

With the rear seats folding flat it is an ideal vehicle for lugging baby buggies and cots for small children, bikes and golf clubs for the sports-minded, and materials or business equipment during the working week.

It has also been produced with safety in mind and it includes front, side and curtain airbags plus a driver's knee airbag, a multi-function Electronic Stability Program, Active Rollover Protection, Brake Assist, Hill Start Assist and ESS (Emergency Stop Signal) and a tyre pressure monitoring system.

Under the bonnet, the Tivoli XEV has 1.6-litre diesel engine with the option of a six-speed manual transmission or six-speed automatic with the choice of two or four-wheel-drive.

SsangYong claims the 115bhp turbocharged power unit produces just 117g/km of CO2 on the two-wheel-drive version with manual gearing and stop-start, and will return around 63mpg on a combined run.

Top speed for the XEV is 109mph and 0-62mph comes up in 12sec.

On the test drive, I found the power acceptable, if not exciting, and it coped with the motorway stretches adequately with overtaking made easy but with a fair bit of noise from the transmission and engine note.

On country roads, despite this being a fair-sized motor, it cornered pretty well at speed with just a bit of body roll.

Despite having three settings for the steering weight I didn't find much difference in feel. Road noise is well suppressed, but I found a bit of wind noise at high speed.

The cabin is a pleasant enough with very supportive seats up front, a good front and rearward view, and most of the controls are easy to reach and understand.

The quality of the materials used on the latest SsangYong is a step up for the brand and everything has a much more substantial feel to it.

Where the XEV scores heavily against the competition in this sector is the huge amount of standard equipment.

It includes dual-zone air conditioning, and infotainment system with RDS radio, seven-inch touch screen, USB/AUX port, iPad and Bluetooth connectivity, TomTom sat nav, rear-view camera, cruise control, parking sensors front and rear, rain sensing wipers, automatic headlights, keyless entry and tinted glass to name but a few.

Another plus point, which will appeal to those opting for the XEV, is its five-year limitless mileage warranty.

All major mechanical components are covered including wheel bearings, suspension joints and bushes, steering joints, shock absorbers and even the audio system.

Wearable components such as clutch discs and brake friction materials which could have their life reduced by poor driving are covered for one year or 12,500 miles, and the battery and paintwork for three years.

In my opinion, the new SsangYong motor is well worth considering. The amount of standard kit on it is probably second to none in its sector, the built quality is much improved on previous SsangYong products and, although the price has yet to be confirmed, it will probably be around £17,500, which is a lot of motor for that price.

Essex County Council

(Various Roads, District of Epping Forest)
(Temporary Prohibition of Traffic) (No.2) Order 2016

Notice is hereby given that the Essex County Council intends, not less than seven days from the date of this notice, to make the above Order under Section 14(1) of the Road Traffic Regulation Act 1984.

Effect of the order: To temporarily close the various lengths of road in the District of Epping Forest as specified:

Road	Description	Alternative route	Times
Forest Way, Loughton	From its junction with York Hill for a distance of 150 metres in a north westerly direction to Bridal Path	No diversion route available	09:00 - 17:00
Hoe Lane, Nazeing	From its junction with Middle Street for a distance of 350 metres in a north easterly direction to its junction with Palmers Grove.	Betts Lane, Nazeing Common, Middle Street and vice versa	19:30 - 05:00
Netherhall Road, Roydon	From its junction with Hamlet Hill, north to its junction with Glen Faba Road	Low Hill Road, B181 Epping Road, Tylers Road, Hamlet Hill and vice versa	19:00 - 05:00

The works being undertaken will take place within an 18 month period from 23 June 2016, exact dates and time will be specified on <http://roadworks.org/>. The roads will be closed to facilitate each phase and then re-opened to the public. Access will be maintained for pedestrians and emergency services. Diversion routes will be signed at each location and residents will be informed of the dates of each phase via letter/leaflet drop and advanced warning signs on the road.

Phase One

Pre-surface patching works. These works comprise filling any surface defects and raising/replacing worn iron works (manhole covers and gully's) as well as removal of cat's eyes if present.

Phase Two

Surface dressing. The process entails spraying the road with bitumen and covering it with granite chippings, after which the road is then rolled, which along with the action of the traffic, embeds the chippings into the surface. The road will be swept within 48 hours and after 7 days. The bitumen part of the surface dressing as well as securing the chippings to the existing surface will seal the old road surface, thus preventing the ingress of water which causes deterioration of the road surface and will improve skid resistance.

Phase Three

a) Reinstatement of white lines if required. Reinstatement of any road markings.

b) Reinstatement of any road studs.

For all enquiries please contact our Contact Centre on 0345 603 7631.

The Order will come into effect on 23 June 2016 and may continue in force for 18 months or until the works have been completed, whichever is the earlier.

YOUR STARS WITH

ARIES MARCH 21 – APRIL 20

Friends may let you down this week, but you'll be discovering that they were never true friends to begin with. Mars pushes you to say things you may regret on Friday and it would be to your advantage to count to ten or you could end up letting a secret out of the bag which was not yours to tell. Ring now to hear how it's worth trusting fellow rams with your most intimate secrets.

FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 348 65p per minute

TAURUS APRIL 21 – MAY 21

Try not to let a competitive air ruin what should be an atmosphere of camaraderie in the workplace. Aspects suggest you could be venting your anger on current faces for things those in the past did to you. Venus brings an instant attraction your way which could well change everything. Dressing well on Friday can give you the edge on the competition. Ring now for your week in full.

FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 349 65p per minute

GEMINI MAY 22 – JUNE 21

This week offers you the chance to save some much needed funds and you no longer feel so vulnerable about your future. You are willing to face your fears head on and turn them into challenges and opportunities. Nights out this week put the spring back in your step and show that you're finally living again. Ring now to make sense of recent mixed signals.

FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 350 65p per minute

CANCER JUNE 22 – JULY 22

Live every day with love, not fear. If it is the latter then you should know by now that it's time to move on. The written word is more important than usual and you start to see where things went wrong professionally and what you need to do to rectify them. Mix ups with messages on Friday are dangerous. Go straight to the source. Ring now so I can foretell your future.

FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 351 65p per minute

LEO JULY 23 – AUGUST 23

You start to feel so much more optimistic about the future. Things you did not have the energy to tackle before will now seem like minor obstacles for you to steer around. You learned a lot from a close one's major drama and it has made you a gentler, softer sign. Try not to rush love affairs, but build a base if they are to be the lasting kind. Ring now so we can make the most of your stars.

FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 352 65p per minute

VIRGO AUGUST 24 – SEPTEMBER 22

Try not to get involved in office politics this month as I know there is so much more to what is going on than first meets the eye. Your ruling planet Mercury gives you the power to deal with important or difficult faces, so use this as your week to face any fears and you will conquer them. Ring now to hear why I want you to act on impulse romantically this week.

FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 353 65p per minute

LIBRA SEPTEMBER 23 – OCTOBER 23

Promises others made are broken, but they teach you a lot about who you can trust and who has just been blowing hot air. Family need to be made a priority this weekend or you could end up causing an atmosphere which will cast a dark cloud over your summer. The Moon brings out your confessional side on Friday. Ring now to delve deeper into those strange dream you're having.

FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 354 65p per minute

SCORPIO OCTOBER 24 – NOVEMBER 21

I know you are scared of what is ahead of you Scorpio, but let me tell you that if you can face what's ahead with your head held high, then you will succeed. Nothing in life is to be feared. It is only to be understood. Try to take some time out of your week to get the facts and figures which have been lacking. Ring now to hear why I know two careers beckon, not just one.

FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 355 65p per minute

SAGITTARIUS NOVEMBER 22 – DECEMBER 20

This week you can choose to make a difference. Previously, you had been sitting back and accepting what life threw at you, but no more. Follow fire sign Aries and Leo help you find your childish side which can go a long way to you blowing off some steam. Flirtations on Thursday turn serious. Ring now so we can make your future the best it can be.

FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 356 65p per minute

CAPRICORN DECEMBER 21 – JANUARY 20

Decisions you made in your career earlier in year threw you off your chosen path and didn't help your finances either. A link with a new city or even a foreign country helps you to get your mojo back and proves that they were aiming too low. Give me a ring now to hear why this is such a powerful week to ask for what you want in life.

FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 357 65p per minute

AQUARIUS JANUARY 21 – FEBRUARY 19

You've had your trust in others tested, that I see. The truth is that the people who love you the most will give you the freedom you need to be who you want to be. From Tuesday, you work out who has been subjecting you to emotional blackmail. An older face is not as helpless as they say. Step back and watch for a day or two. Ring now to hear which sign is worth compromising for.

FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 358 65p per minute

PISCES FEBRUARY 20 – MARCH 20

Don't be jealous of the attention that a loved one is giving to a face they work with. You know many of us often end up spending more time with people at work than we do those we live with. It doesn't mean they don't care for you. Call my starline to find out why you can stand with confidence.

Town go on Caribbean cruise to first league victory

THERE was jubilation as Harlow Town beat Old Southendians & Southchurch to record their first Shepherd Neame Essex League win of the season on Saturday.

The 84-run victory lifted Town to fifth in Division Two.

Ashley Alderson's superb 88 inspired Town to reach 233-8 after being put in to bat.

His pulling and driving was fantastic and he quickly moved the scoreboard on to 46.

Alderson eventually found himself a stoic partner in Matt Hurley.

Inspired by a massive six that landed on the adjacent golf course, Hurley (55) dominated the Old Souths attack.

Jamaican Chris Powell struck an excellent 43 to help Town to 233-8, a defendable score.

Powell was even better with ball in hand, taking 5-49 as Old Souths were wiped out for 149.

Michael Bunce then skied a delivery to be well taken by Shaun Alderson off Mohammed Ali and then Powell comprehensively bowled James Bunce first ball to leave Old South 149 all out, as Harlow Town's players celebrated.

Mohammed Ali (3-26) also bowled very well.

Town skipper Neil Gladwin said: "A win has been a long time coming. It was great to see Ashley bat well at the top of the order. Chris also batted with intent towards the back end of the innings and to see us post 233, I knew we had every chance of pulling off victory.

"It is a shame that we will be without Shiraz [Ali] and Has [Ali] as they will be observing Ramadan, but it was nice for them to sign off with a victory."

fifth in the ten-team Shepherd Neame Essex League Division One.

Sykes sizzled, taking three key early wickets.

Skipper Rehman was delighted with the win. He said: "All credit to Ahmed's 100. The rest of us [together] only mustered 30. Everyone bowled well and stuck to a plan and created pressure for Waqas to take five wickets with his unpredictable spin at the other end.

"Callum's debut couldn't have gone better, a not out with the bat, three early wickets and a game deciding catch."

Earlier, Waqas (8), Alan Jones (3) and skipper Rehman Ahmed (0) left Harlow reeling on 25-3.

Khawaja was magnificent but wickets continued to tumble as Harlow were reduced to 77-7 after 25 overs.

Lewis Aldred's 44-run stand with Khawaja was crucial.

Khawaja was dropped at gully when on 78, while Aldred's exit (lbw) left Harlow on 121-8.

Khawaja hit a four to long-on to bring up his century off only 88 balls. His innings contained nine fours and seven sixes.

His departure saw Harlow dismissed for 132.

A terrific spell of pace bowling by Sykes reduced Hadleigh to 4-3, one clean bowled, one lbw, one caught behind.

The introduction of Waqas saw wickets tumble.

Richard Revell (28) hit three sixes but was brilliantly caught by Sykes.

In his next delivery, Waqas bowled Paul Tibbenham (29) to claim his fifth wicket and seal an unlikely win on a demon pitch.

Club bridges Watford gap to remain at top

United men and women give athletic club the edge

In brief

A PULSATING battle with Watford was won by Harlow Athletic Club as they triumphed in their second Southern League match and consolidated their lead in Division Three North.

The day began in fine style when Polly Woods broke a long-standing club record in the women's hammer.

Her throw of 37.04m was almost two metres further than the previous mark and won the A event.

Former club record holder, Steph Fuller, threw 30m+ to win the B competition.

Dave Bauer made a successful return from injury as he threw 10.78m in the shot put for second place.

Teale Cunningham set a personal best (PB) in the high jump of 1.75m and Beth Harryman leapt 5.06m in the long jump (PB).

Superb

Glen Paxman set a superb PB in the pole vault of 3.15m.

Polly Woods and Hannah Owen won both A and B javelin events.

Owen's throw of 22.60m was a PB.

Glen then joined his brother, Carl, to take another double first in the men's long jump.

Mohamed Tamberou ran 11.80sec for second in the men's A race. Harry Woodall ran strongly to win the B race.

The 1500m then saw three victories as Lottie Rowedder, Katie Champion and Donald Campbell won three of the four races.

Polly Woods and Steph Fuller were both second in the A and B women's shot put events.

Glen Paxman and Leo

GLIMPSE OF THE FUTURE: Harlow Athletic Club's junior members are excelling this season

Chashchin took both firsts in the triple jump and Dawn Jones picked up an impressive victory in the high jump.

Eilidh Malcolm secured a great first place in the B 400m.

Teale Cunningham won his A 400m.

Harlow and Watford remained neck and neck as the meeting remained a two-horse race.

Harry Woodall stepped up for an excellent second in the A race and Ian Smith made a welcome return to club colours in the B race in third place.

The final round of field events saw the Paxman twins win the javelin events.

Dave Bauer triumphed in the discus and Polly Woods and Dawn Jones won the triple jump events.

Martyn Coulter and Carl Paxman finished in second and third respectively in the steeplechase.

For the first time in many years the women fielded two athletes in the steeplechase with Katie Champion and Dawn Jones stepping up.

With Watford not picking up enough points, victory was assured for Harlow.

Club chairman Steve Lott said: "We were really forced into the combined men's and women's team events due the collapse of the Southern Men's and Women's Leagues.

"However, the format has seen the team really come together. It was great to see the athletes encourage each other and the mood around the club is buoyant."

Selected Men's A team results: 100m Mohamed Tamberou 2nd 11.8sec, 400m hurdles Glen Paxman 2nd 1:02.38, high jump Teale Cunningham 2nd 1.75m, pole vault Glen Paxman 2nd 3.15m, long jump Glen Paxman 2nd 5.88m, triple jump Glen Paxman 1st 11.70m, shot Dave Bauer 2nd 10.78m, discus Dave Bauer 1st 38.15m, hammer Dave Bauer 1st 33.90, javelin Glen Paxman 1st 39.18m. FROM JEROUNDS TO A EURO STAR

Derby leader could skipper Republic of Ireland in France

By Alan Scott

alan.scott@hertsexnews.co.uk

DERBY County captain Richard Keogh is set to play a key role for the Republic of Ireland at Euro 2016 – but it's a far cry from his days growing up in Harlow.

Defender Keogh, 29, first attended Jerounds Primary School before attending Passmores School. It is believed he then went on to Burnt Mill.

His family lived in Jerounds, just a stone's throw from the junior school.

He was spotted by Harlow-based Ipswich scout John Sykes as a teenager and joined the Tractor Boys alongside fellow Passmores youngster Darren Ambrose in 2001.

From Ipswich he went to Stoke City in 2003, being named Young Player of the Year that year, before playing at Bristol City, Carlisle United and Coventry, as well as loan spells at Huddersfield, Carlisle, Wycombe and Cheltenham.

Star role

But it is at Derby he has excelled over the last few years, twice winning the club's Player of the Year award.

He won his first senior international call-up at 27 years old and has played a star role to help Martin O'Neill's men qualify for France, and could be captain if Robbie Keane does not start.

Keogh has 12 caps now and captained the national team in their friendly against Belarus last week. After captaining the team for the first time against Oman he called it "the proudest moment of his life".

Former Harlow Penguins Swimming Club stalwart Tony Tribe, whose son Anthony was best friends with Keogh at Jerounds, recalls fondly the young Irishman.

He said: "He's a lovely bloke.

They used to go to each other's birthday parties and so on. They played for the Jerounds School team.

"Anthony was rubbish at football but he always says Richard was very good. He wasn't outstanding but he had the knack of getting the ball off people.

"He has done very well. I remember at the time his parents lived opposite Jerounds, so he only had to cross the road to get to school.

"Since Derby he has been a real success.

"He's just an ordinary Harlow lad who has made it."

Keogh has moved on to much bigger things and will take on Italy, Belgium and Sweden in an incredibly tough Group E in the extravaganza in France, which starts tomorrow.

He was named in the squad revealed by O'Neill last week.

"We were written off after we drew at home to Scotland last June, but we never stopped believing and we kicked on," Keogh told the Derby County website.

"A few results went our way and then we beat Germany. We never looked back and we were so focused in the play-offs and the feeling that brought was something that I will never forget.

"Every tournament deserves the Ireland fans and I know that they are looking forward to it.

"It will be a great experience for us as players and the fans too."

Keogh produced outstanding performances at the heart of defence as Ireland defeated the World Champions before beating Bosnia & Herzegovina over two legs in the play-off to qualify.

He featured in all 46 of the Rams' Championship games over the past campaign, just missing out on promotion.

Having been a schoolboy in Ipswich Town's academy and a ballboy at Portman Road, Keogh moved on to the Stoke City youth set-up in January 2003.

After spells at a few different clubs, he has become a firm fans' favourite with the Rams.

It's a far cry from his days at Jerounds, Passmores and Burnt Mill Academy.

Canaan's Euro No.1 for 800m

HARLOW College student Canaan Solomon (pictured above) has moved to number one in the European and UK U18 rankings for 800m.

The 17-year-old won a B-string 800m race at the British Milers Club Championship at Watford.

He achieved a new personal best (PB) time of 1min 48.8sec, which makes him the fastest U18 in the UK and also Europe.

His time was just three-tenths away from the 1:48.5 needed to qualify for the Great Britain team to compete at the World Junior Championships in Poland next month.

The former Mark Hall Academy student will now contest the AAA Championships on June 18-19, when he will compete against the best U18 athletes in the UK.

Woodford Green with Essex Ladies AC coach John Stow, where Canaan trains, said: "If Canaan can achieve that time and place top three in the AAAs Juniors next month, he will be on the plane to Poland in July.

"Canaan needs to secure a top three place and hope the selectors take him along for the experience in Bydgoszcz."

Harlow trio get Thunder struck

THE combination of Ahmed Khawaja, debutant Callum Skyes and Mohammed Waqas clinched a 20-run win for Rehman Ahmed's Harlow against Hadleigh & Thundersley.

The Marigolds men were bowled out for a meagre 132, batting first.

And considering Khawaja made 102 of those runs, his contribution on a difficult wicket could not be understated.

Waqas then conspired to destroy Hadleigh, taking 5-20 as the hosts were wiped out for 112.

The victory means Harlow are
